DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101 which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

Claims 1-12 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of Claims 1-13, respectively, of prior U.S. Patent No.6370169. This is a double patenting rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13-14, and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Seya et al (US 4956812) in view of Maluf (US 5731874).

Seya et al. discloses a wavelength selective device that includes a phase detection unit (22), a reference optical wavelength as part of the wavelength regulator (25; see also abstract) and the wavelength of the variable light source

(10) is controlled according to the phase difference between the reference (25) and the output of the variable light source (10) (col. 2, line 52- col. 4, line 4).

Maluf teaches the use of a diffraction grating and detector array to monitor the wavelength of a beam. (abstract; see also Fig. 1) It would have been obvious to someone of ordinary skill in the art of lasers at the time of the invention to modify Seya et al. to include the wavelength monitor system of Maluf utilizing the diffraction detection systems disclosed to better control the wavelength of a variable wavelength light source.

Claims 15-20, and 22-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Seya et al (US 4956812) in view of Maluf (US 5731874) as applied above, and further in view of Takeda.

Takeda discloses a reference signal generation unit (9) for generating a reference signal having a phase corresponding to a reference optical wavelength (col. 3, lines 19-36) and a phase comparator (10) that detects the phase difference between the two optical signals. It would have been obvious to someone of ordinary skill in that art of lasers at the time of the invention to modify Seya et al. in view of Maluf to enable control of a variable wavelength source over a wide range (Takeda, abstract).
